

What would you be doing...if not officiating?

#thankthestripes, December 1, 2, & 3, 2023

- If I was not officiating, I would be playing video games.
- If I wasn't officiating, I would be on my couch watching TV.
- Sitting on the couch watching hockey
- Probably getting myself in some type of trouble.
- More outdoor activities and more overtime at work
- I would likely be working more, and travelling. With my current job affording me frequent travel opportunities and chances to explore my other passion, aviation, I'd likely be doing lots of that. But I'm very glad that this season, I'm able to strike a balance and enjoy both of my biggest passions.
- Going on the outdoor rink more and hanging out with friends
- I would be sitting on the couch drinking beer. Instead I'm in the ref room drinking beer!
- I would be playing hockey and practicing hockey so being a timekeeper and mentor lets me get paid for doing something I already like doing.
- Probably playing hockey, or shooting pucks in the driveway.
- I would probably continue doing yard work or work at a store.
- I also time keep and play AAA hockey. Time keeping and reffing allow me to better understand the game, allows me to give back to the hockey community and gives me some additional spending money because hockey is very expensive.
- I would probably be watching a lot more Jets games and spending my time reading.
- working out at the ymca or playing more hockey.
- Working a boring job not related to hockey
- Probably would be a lifeguard
- Playing video games - not making money!
- I would be sitting at home and be bored.
- I would be timekeeping a lot but being both an off/on ice official gives me a nice balance.
- Working out, studying and have a part time job somewhere else.
- probably playing video games
- If I wasn't officiating I wouldn't be doing any other kind of work.
- Play higher level hockey, don't know what I would do to make money though. Babysitting?
- Not be able to have a job that is both fun and able to fit my own hockey schedule.
- Sleeping more...not doing admin work until 11pm at night.
- I would be working on my goalie skills and making myself an even better goalie.
- At home with my kids being a mom.
- Another part time job. Ex: working at a canteen
- if i wasn't officiating i would probably just be sitting around doing nothing on the weekends and would be very bored.
- I've been officiating since I was 11 years old - I don't know what I would be doing otherwise.
- I would be pursuing another hockey related job because I love the sport
- I would still be coaching both of my boys hockey teams.
- Wishing I was playing hockey....waiting for the ODR to open lol
- If I were not officiating I would likely be playing video games or hanging out with my friends.
- Attending school or working.
- I would be working a different job.
- I would be playing my sports , reading, watching TV, hanging with my family or friends depending on which day it is.
- I'd be spending more time with my family and not as much time keeping fit.
- If I wasn't officiating then I would be coaching, I gave up coaching to become a ref. I should have done it years ago.
- Focusing more in school, and playing hockey
- i don't think i would be doing anything if i wasn't reffing.
- Just sitting around playing video games
- I wouldn't be doing anything.
- I would find another way to stay involved with the sport of Hockey
- Watching or playing sports.
- if I wasn't officiating I would either be playing hockey or out with my friends
- I would be playing hockey in my free time if I wasn't reffing
